A guide to publishing in scholarly journals

Why publish with Elsevier?

125 years of publishing expertise

For the past 125 years, the name Elsevier has been synonymous with excellence in publishing. That tradition carries on today. Every year, Elsevier accepts and publishes more than 250,000 journal articles. More than 20% of the key international scientific publications recognized by the Institute for Scientific Information (ISI) are published by Elsevier. <http://www.elsevier.com/aboutelsevier>

World-renowned publications

Among the thousands of journals and books published by Elsevier are some of the world's most prominent and respected medical, scientific and technological publications. These include The Lancet, Cell, Tetrahedron Letters and a host of others.

A prominent class of peers

Those authors who publish with Elsevier can take pride in knowing that the most honored scholars, scientific leaders and educators - from Galileo to Jules Verne and Stephen W. Hawking - have also published with Elsevier.

Your rights: our responsibility

At Elsevier, our authors are our life's blood. That's why we're dedicated to protecting your rights as an author and ensuring that any and all legal information and copyright regulations are addressed.

Benefits to authors

We also provide many author benefits, such as free PDFs for most journals, a liberal copyright policy, special discounts on Elsevier publications and much more. In addition, Elsevier is committed to the highest standards of electronic archiving and information sharing, to ensure that your article will be available for the foreseeable future.

Elsevier's service to the community

Elsevier recognizes its responsibility to the community and the world at large. We take pride in our many different corporate responsibility programs. <http://www.elsevier.com/philanthropy>
