

AORN PUBLICATIONS OBTAINING PHOTOGRAPHIC CONSENT

Photographs

If you are using photographs of people, you need written consent from any identifiable person in the photo (even staff members). You can use the sample below, which includes the specific language needed for consent. If it is not possible to obtain consent, instruct the editors to block out any identifying features (eyes, mouth).

I _____ authorize AORN Publication Title
(print name)

to include a photograph, in which I am pictured, in an upcoming issue. This permission is valid for all publication rights for print and electronic media (including all alternative media currently in existence [eg, Internet, CD-ROM] or that may be developed in the future) and international publication rights (including translation).
