

Journal of Foot & Ankle Surgery Authors' Conflict of Interest Disclosure

Actual or potential conflicts of interest may have an impact on all participants in the process of publication of a medical journal. An actual or potential conflict regarding publication occurs when a competing interest (financial, competitive or otherwise) may influence (intentionally or not) the interests of safety, veracity, or interpretation of data and results.

Not identifying these conflicts may bring actual or potential harm to patients, cause embarrassment to the journal, reviewers and the American College of Foot & Ankle Surgeons (ACFAS), and bring disrepute to the investigators and others involved in the editorial process. To avoid this, all authors must disclose actual or potential conflicts related to all aspects of their manuscript. This includes any actual or potential competing interest related to the design, conduct, and interpretation of the data. All articles published in JFAS will be accompanied by a disclosure statement.

The following competing interests or relationships must be disclosed, including those of persons related to the authors such as spouses, dependent children, or adult children employed by a sponsor of the research, or any other relationship involving the actual or potential sharing of income or assets. The following are referred to as Required Disclosures:

- A. Leadership Position: Employment or service as an officer or board member for an entity having an investment, licensing, or other commercial interest in the subject matter under consideration
- B. Consultant/Advisory Role: Arrangements with an entity having an investment, licensing, or other commercial interest in the subject matter under consideration if performed or payments made within two years or anticipated to be paid in the future
- C. Stock Ownership: Any ownership interest including stock, options, and warrants in any publicly traded or privately held company if the company is an entity having an investment, licensing, or other commercial interest in the subject matter under consideration, except an interest of less than 5% in a publicly traded fund not controlled by the covered individual
- D. Honoraria: Honoraria for specific speeches, seminar presentations, or appearances when paid to the covered individual by an entity (or agent of the entity) having an investment, licensing, or other commercial interest in the subject matter under consideration and when provided within two years or anticipated to be paid in the future
- E. Research Funding: Payments associated with the conduct of the clinical research project in question if provided by the trial sponsor or agent of the entity
- F. Expert Testimony: Provision of expert testimony related to the subject matter under question
- G. Other Compensation: Trips, travel, gifts, or other in-kind payments not directly related to specific research activities (if not disclosed as related to research related funding) if received from an entity having an investment, licensing, or other commercial interest in the subject matter under consideration and when received within two years of the activity or subject matter in question or anticipated to be received within one year after submission. Aggregate amounts of less than $500 per payor (including its agents) are excluded from disclosure requirements.
