

American Urological Association (AUA) Disclosure Statement January-December 2009

In order to ensure proper balance, independence, objectivity, and scientific rigor in all AUA educational and governance activities, individuals participating in such activities are expected to disclose their private financial or institutional interests related to health care or to AUA activities, business transactions, presentations or publications. AUA does not view the existence of these interests or commitments as necessarily implying bias or decreasing the value of participation in organization activities. The intent of disclosure is to allow others to make an informed decision about the existence and impact of potential conflicts -- including the necessity for recusal or disqualification under extraordinary circumstances.

Any member of the AUA who refuses to complete a disclosure history will be prohibited from participation in an AUA Committee, Council, Educational Course, or Publication. AUA members shall be encouraged to report, in confidence, apparent violations of the disclosure policy by others. Sanctions shall be applied, following appropriate investigation, by recommendation of the AUA Judicial & Ethics Council to the AUA Board of Directors. Criticism is reserved for those who a) subordinate the interests of the Association to their private interests, b) fail to make appropriate disclosure of their competing interests, or c) in some circumstances, fail to avoid unnecessary and unjustified appearance of conflict of interest. Failure to comply with the disclosure policy shall be considered cause for sanctions, which may include removal of an AUA member from office or appointment, recusal from review of abstracts or materials regarding which a conflict exists, exclusion from participation in the affected AUA activity, or authorship of submitted materials, and where egregious, expulsion from AUA or other sanctions prescribed by Article X of the AUA Bylaws.

Please check here if, based on the criterion listed above, you have no disclosures to report
