

CLINICAL ONCOLOGY

VACANCY

Regional Editor with responsibilities for Australasia and the Far East

Clinical Oncology is an international cancer journal covering all aspects of the clinical management of cancer patients, reflecting a multidisciplinary approach to therapy.

We are seeking to appoint a Regional Editor with responsibilities for Australasia and the Far East to join the current editorial team which includes the Editor based in London and two other regional editors in North America and India. As Regional Editor, you will have autonomy with regard to handling papers submitted to you for publication, and you will be expected to promote and represent the Journal in your region.

As Regional Editor, you will receive support from the Publishers, Elsevier Health Sciences, with regard to stationery, office costs, and, of course, free subscription to the Journal. Peer review is an initial part of the assessment of papers submitted for publication, and you would be expected to manage this using the electronic submission system provided by the publishers with your team of local reviewers.

Interested candidates are asked to contact Prof. Peter Hoskin, Editor-in-Chief, by email at peterhoskin@nhs.net for further details.
