

RELIGION uses a rigorous peer-review process. The success and quality of the journal ultimately depend on our referees, who generously share their time, energy, and expertise. In 2008, 95 referees from 20 countries reviewed articles submitted to RELIGION (some reviewing more than once). As a modest gesture of appreciation to these many scholars who so willingly contributed to the journal in 2008, we take this opportunity to acknowledge and thank them all. The list below includes those who explicitly agreed to have their names published.
