The Harold Ellis Prize in Surgery

The International Journal of Surgery awards the prestigious annual Harold Ellis Prize in Surgery (Est. 2003) in recognition of scientific papers judged to be outstanding.

Terms and Conditions:

A valid entry for the Harold Ellis prize must comply with all the terms and conditions set out below:

• Eligibility

1. All authors are invited to submit, regardless of occupation, professional rank or geographical location (those from non-surgical backgrounds are also welcome to submit).
2. Multi-author papers are welcome.
3. Only one entry per author is permissible.
4. People who have submitted in previous years (successful and unsuccessful) are not precluded from re-entering.
5. All entries must be received by 1st February in each calendar year. Entries received after this date will not be considered for the award in that calendar year.
6. All entries must be submitted via the IJS online submission system <http://ees.elsevier.com/ijs/>.
7. Entries must not be co-submitted elsewhere or have been previously published.
8. It is imperative for author(s) to declare sources of funding for research and to state any conflicting interests.
9. Where animal/human experimentation has been conducted, ethical approval must be verifiable and the judgement by the local ethical committee must be referred to.

10. For multi-author papers, each author is required to indicate their precise role in the research (i.e, concept, design, methods, practical and data collection, interpretation of results and broader analysis as well as the write-up).

● Article Requirements

1. The manuscript must bear relevance to an aspect of surgery, be this clinical, scientific, ethical, philosophical or artistic.
2. A 3000 word limit applies, this excludes a compulsory abstract of 250 words maximum.
3. All articles must be written in the English language.

● Assessment

1. Each application will be assessed using a weighted scoring system, which includes points for originality, surgical relevance and the writing style adopted by the author(s).
2. The evaluation of entries for the Harold Ellis Prize will be conducted independently in a double blind manner, by external assessors in conjunction with the Editorial Board. Entries will consequently be ranked according to their numerical score
3. The details of assessment judgements will not be disclosed and they will be final.

● Prize Announcement and Award of Prize

1. Participants will be notified of the result in June of each calendar year.
2. The winning entry together with the second and third highest scoring articles will be published in the International Journal of Surgery and also made available on the website. The author of the winning entry will be awarded £500 in Elsevier book vouchers.
3. Depending on the quality of entries, the International Journal of Surgery reserves the right to alter the number of awards as deemed appropriate.
